Board takes next step for EL construction

The Laurens County Board of Education took the next step toward a new East Laurens Elementary School and athletic complex last week.

The Laurens County Board of Education authorized Superintendent O.J. Hall to enter into negotiations with Lentile Construction Co., which had been recommended by the board's committee. After this is completed, Hall would broker contracts between the Laurens County School District and the construction company. Board member Kathy Sweat abstained from the vote because of a family connection.

"I'm excited for the staff, students and the community out there," Hall said. "They are definitely deserving of it. This project allows us to come full circle in a sense."

The Eastside will have a new East Laurens High School and athletic complex, along with a remodeled ELMS.

"This not only gives the elementary a new school, but the middle school its own athletic complex," Hall said. "That's important because it allows us to have practices more practically and efficiently. It allows us to have options when it comes to the fields."

The project will go in

I-16 pileups lead to fatal accident

Wrecks began in Laurens Co. with broken-down 18-wheeler

By PAYTON TOWNS III
Senior Reporter

A 53-year-old Elko man died in a Macon hospital after he drove into the back of another vehicle when traffic had come to a stop because of three previous accidents – two of which involved vehicles hitting the same broken down 18-wheeler on the side of the road – on Interstate 16 early last Friday.

According to a Georgia State Patrol incident report, Walter Allen Pratt was driving a 2020 Kenworth Construction vehicle, traveling east in the right lane of I-16 around 8:45 a.m. Friday, Jan. 23. In front of him were a 2017 Chevrolet Silverado with a trailer, driven by Rene Cedano, 39, of Palmetto, a 2012 Freightliner, driven by Ronnie Oneal Hurst, 40, of Covington, and a 2015 Freightliner, driven by Brandon Antonio Doles, 29, of Woodstock. These three vehicles had come to a stop in the right lane of I-16 East due to earlier wrecks on the road in Laurens County.

The Kenworth hit the 2015 Freightliner, causing it to strike the back of the 2012 Freightliner. This vehicle then hit the back of the 2017 Chevrolet Silverado. After hitting the 2015 Freightliner, Pratt's vehicle continued for another 66 feet to the paved edge where it overturned for 122 feet coming to an uncontrolled stop on the south shoulder of the interstate. Pratt was transported to Navicent Health Hospital, where he died from injuries he received in the crash.

hit the Chevrolet and rotated counterclockwise for 62 feet before striking the cable barriers and then continued for 22 feet into the median before it came to an uncontrolled stop.

Hurst was transported to FPH with suspected minor or visible injuries.

After being struck, the Chevrolet continued straight for approximately 89 feet with its trailer overturning into the road for an uncontrolled final stop. Cedano and passenger were transported to FPH. Both were listed with possible in-

Local sorority leads event to feed, educate people in honor of MLK Jr.

By PAYTON TOWNS III

A local sorority teamed up with other organizations to distribute meals and care bags as a way to remember the birthday of Martin Luther King Jr.

The local Alpha Kappa Alpha Tau Omicron Omega Chapter, St. Peter Baptist Church, 1K Women Strong (1KWS), students from Dublin High School and members from Recovery In Supportive Environment Utilizing Peers (RISEUP) spent Monday distributing meals and care bags at St. Peter Baptist Church.

"We are here celebrating MLK Day of service," said Letunya Walker, president of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority. "This is one of our big service projects for (the sorority), and we serve the Laurens County and Dublin community."

The church opened at 11 a.m. Monday, though the event did not start until 12:30 p.m. The crowd was partnered with some of the local hotels where some of them are living and the homeless shelter, Walker said.

"The church gave away soup and sandwiches, and we are giving away 'blessing bags,'" Walker said. "Those have toiletries and non-perishable food items. We also have donations from the 1KWS have are given away hats, gloves, coats and blankets. They are receiving everything they need for this time of year."

Melissa McElman, RISEUP operation manager, was at the event to talk with people and hand out information, along with NARCAN, an overdose treatment.

"We are being supportive to the community," McElman said. "We let them know what kind of resources we have and we are letting them know what we do."

RISEUP likes to network with others.

"We didn't know about this sorority before this," McElman said. "We let them know what we do just in case they run across someone who is on the street. They can tell them to go to RISEUP for help."

This was the first time the sorority has partnered with other organizations, Walker said.

"We have done the soup kitchen and clothing giveaway and blessing bags 10 years or more," she said. "This is a good way to help people in need and those who may just need a hot meal today or need any type of support. From what I understand, the homeless population in the Dublin area is increasing. We are trying to do whatever we can to help fill that void they may have, and offer any support that we can provide to help those individuals get back on their feet again."

The Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority has been in existence for 118 years - founded on Jan. 15, 1908. The local chapter in Dublin was founded on Jan. 16, 1993.

Georgia House to operate minus one member following lawmaker's suspension

By TY TAGAMI
Capitol Beat News Service

ATLANTA — The Georgia General Assembly will be down another lawmaker during this legislative session after the suspension of a state representative who was indicted last month in federal court.

Gov. Brian Kemp ordered the suspension of State Rep. Sharon Henderson, D-Covington, after a committee of elected officials determined that her indictment "does relate to and adversely affect" her duties as a lawmaker.

The suspension, which Kemp signed Thursday, is in effect until Henderson's term ends or her case is closed.

A quick disposition appears unlikely. Henderson has retained a lawyer, and her case in the U.S. District Court in Atlanta is scheduled for a pretrial conference Feb. 19.

Henderson is accused of two counts of theft of government funds and 10 counts of making false statements in connection with claims that she filed for federal unemployment benefits during the COVID-19 pandemic. Prosecutors alleged she collected $17,811 in unemployment benefits to which she was not entitled.

Another member of the state House quickly resolved charges related to defrauding the same unemployment program.

Former Rep. Karen Bennett, D-Stone Mountain, pleaded guilty in the same federal court to making false statements to fraudulently obtain $13,940 in federal emergency relief funds during the pandemic, Theodore S. Hertzberg, the U.S. District Attorney for the Northern District of Georgia, announced Wednesday.

Kemp was required by the Georgia Constitution to assemble the review committee on Henderson's status.

On Jan. 8, he appointed three members. Two were Republicans: Attorney General Chris Carr and Rep. Jan Jones, R-Milton, the House speaker pro tem. The third was Sen. Harold Jones, II, D-Augusta, the Senate minority leader.

They issued their finding Thursday, the same day Kemp suspended Henderson.

Several other seats in the legislature remain open for a variety of reasons, but Secretary of State Brad Raffensperger has been scheduling special elections to fill them, with one for Bennett's vacated seat on March 10.

OUR TAKE...

Weather or not you like the forecast, be prepared

For anyone who paid attention to the weather forecast last week, you know that our area was at one time in the path of the winter storm. As the week progressed, the storm's projected path was predicted to hit north of Dublin and Laurens County.

Even then, the best advice from forecasters and local officials was to stay tuned to the weather predictions as the storm approached. We were told to prepare in case the storm path shifted, which the weather is prone of doing.

Just a few years ago, Hurricane Helene shifted to the right of its projected path. Dublin went from being on the right side of the storm to the middle. In that case, we knew the storm was going to hit us and began preparing days – if not a week – before it struck.

No one wants to go through one hour or more without power. Unfortunately with storms like the ones we have had in the past, it is a realistic possibility. Information about the weather and what to do to be prepared can be found on the Laurens County Emergency Management Agency website.

Beginning in February, the EMA will begin rolling out information pertaining to Severe Weather Preparedness Week. This will be a good time to soak this information in like a sponge and be ready the next time a major storm heads our way.

Finding the joy to overcome adversity

MAN ABOUT TOWN...

By PAYTON TOWNS III

my phone breaking down and going three days without a phone that could receive or make calls. One person told me to enjoy it. They wished their phone would do something similar. And while there were frustrations, I knew a new phone was on its way.

The day after my phone was fixed, I had an issue with my car. Great! Got one thing fixed, and now it is something else that will cost to get corrected. Of course, I was not planning to put money into my car.

But like I have heard multiple times from superintendents or city or county officials at various meetings I have covered throughout the years, these unplanned things happen and we have to deal with them.

I am reminded of how we should look at these challenges in James 1:2-4: “Consider it all joy, my brothers and sisters, when you encounter various trials, knowing that the testing of your faith produces endurance. And let endurance have its perfect result, so that you may be perfect and complete, lacking in nothing.”

It is hard to find yourself seeing the joy when things are not exactly going right. But our current circumstances are always changing. If it is bad, it will be right again at some time.

On Jan. 18, we woke up to news that snow would be hitting our area in a few hours. Before I knew it, our front and back yards was full of that white stuff called snow. This continued until right about lunch time. For those who loved the snow, they got to see it fall nicely from the sky. For those who rather not see it - or don't care - the sun came out that afternoon and melted majority of that white stuff before the moon popped up.

For the last two weeks ends we had to be aware of the possibility of snow or ice. We've seen the predictions and came to a conclusion to what we needed to do to stay safe. And after the storm passes, hopefully, it was not as bad as advertised.

When Hurricane Helene barreled through our lovely state, it left a wide path of destruction. Where you lived determined how long the power was out. Many people had to rough it out, waiting for the electricity to return. Hardly any joy during that dismal period.

But the joy returned as soon as the hum of power came flowing through the house again, meaning life could slowly return to normal.

Bad things will happen. As long as we are breathing, thank the Lord above and try to find the joy.

The elephant in the room? It's our Okefenokee taxes, faced several lawsuits for unpaid services as well as defaulting on loans as our intrepid public servants looked the other way.

By DICK YARBROUGH

Actually, they did more than that. For the past four years, Gov. Brian Kemp and legislative leaders have blocked every effort to consider passage of the Okefenokee Protection Act, first introduced in the Georgia House of Representatives by Rep. Darlene Taylor, R-Thomasville.

The Act, which would prohibit the issuance of mining permits on Trail Ridge, had nearly 100 bipartisan cosponsors from all parts of the state. That was more than enough to win passage. But to no avail. It sat in the Natural Resources & Environment and its chair, Lynn Smith, R-Newnan, never to see the light of day. Smith was obviously just a puppet doing the leadership's bidding.

She didn't even have the good grace to respond to calls and emails from you explaining her actions.

Then there is the Georgia Environmental Protection Division (insert oxymoron here), which received approximately 80,000 overwhelmingly negative comments during public comment periods and did nothing. More than a quarter million comments at state and federal levels have been received since the project was first proposed in 2018. Also overwhelmingly negative.

Let me pause at this point and say that state Sen. Steve Gooch, R-Dahlonega, opined that despite all the opposition to the mining proposal, “Those are decisions that shouldn't be made by political entities. Those are decisions that should be made by regulatory agencies.” Really?

Gooch has announced he is running for Lt. Governor, which last time I looked, is a political entity. If and when he asks you for your vote, please ask him if he still feels that way. If so, why do we need him making decisions? Let's let unelected bureaucrats make all the decisions and he can busy himself cutting ribbons at Walmart grand openings.

After Twin Pines Minerals had crawled back into the hole from whence they came, Toledo Manufacturing, the largest remaining private landowner along the swamp's southeastern boundary, had publicly solicited the Chemours Company, the world's biggest titanium mining company, to join forces. That's not likely anytime soon. It turns out that Chemours has announced it is laying off one-third of its workforce in Georgia due to a slump in titanium dioxide prices and a global glut of the stuff, thanks to the Chinese.

In addition, new research by scientists at the University of Georgia suggests that mining in or around the swamp could affect groundwater supplies relied on by millions of people.

Now that drilling for toothpaste whitener in our Okefenokee is not economically feasible and UGA scientists have research that it's an unwise thing to do ecologically, wouldn't this be a good time to stick a fork in the whole thing and pass the Okefenokee Protection Act? The answer is (a) yes and (b) don't hold your breath.

I suspect our intrepid public servants and their land baron pals will wait for market conditions to improve and then it will be déjà vu all over again. But if they think we are going away, they are mistaken. They may pretend there is no elephant in the room, but we know better.

- Trenton J. Mims, 19, was charged with disorderly conduct at Fairview Park Hospital on Industrial Boulevard around 1:16 p.m. on Jan. 10.

An officer responded to the hospital in reference to a disorderly person. Three women security officers said Mims was brought in the day before by law enforcement to be evaluated for a 10-13. The doctor signed a 10-13 order, and Sims was waiting to be moved to another facility to be evaluated.

During this waiting period, Mims got irritated because he did not have a TV or working bathroom. Security stated that he began to curse at them and called them names, making threats and damaging property. The officer met with Mims, who was calm and compliant. The school board also said if the SPLOST passed that seniors would not have to pay school taxes. But, that's not true because we've got our tax bill and it says we owe about 80 percent to the school. So, that was a big old bald story.

Uncle Tell It master, I have one of those jaw harps. Mine is a Snoopy harp. I used to play it, but now I have soft teeth. I had a toothache and it hurt me so bad I couldn't go to work. I went to the dentist and told him I wanted it pulled. He pulled it out and was fixing to throw it in the trash. I told him not to throw it away. He asked if I was going to pull it under the pillow for the tooth fairy. I told him I was going to get it home, put some syrup on it and throw it in the freezer and told him to see if it can hurt me now!

This is Tell It man reporting in. Tell It master talked about changing tires in the paper. This boy reporting on WMAZ in Monroe was on the side of the highway talking about the snow. He was stuck there because of a flat tire.

This is to the Dublin Board of Education for the city of Dublin schools. You are hurting Dublin by raising taxes. You are hurting Dublin and the citizens. No one wants to move into Dublin and pay higher taxes. Also you have to be realistic that you owe the state Board of Education $13 million and it is now probably $14 million. You also owe the state retirement and health care. Quit trying to fool yourself. You must stop and move forward with consolidation with the county.

How does the board not see that we don't trust them - it has been said every way possible! Anybody that is old on the board should resign. We don't believe anything that comes out of your mouth.

When is the city schools going to build the new baseball training facility? Sports are the most important function of the school. It needs to be put up as soon as possible.

Whoever thinks Fred Williams and Dublin city school should sue for slander is a joke. Who are they gonna sue? The Courier Herald is printing the voice of the people. It's been harped on for a long time and will continue to until the GBI investigation. Fred should have done his job and he wouldn't be getting slammed in the Tell It. Someone needs to be held accountable and responsible!

Does Dublin City have a street sweeper that goes around to the back areas on apartment complex's. It looks like a forest.

Laurens County may be the only place in America where the private Christian school has to leave the county wrestling championship early for fighting!

Regardless with what the GBI comes up with, if someone is charged for the taxpayers' money being stolen at the Dublin City Schools, the citizens of Dublin will never forget it. It will never be over!

I'd like to know if we are the list for putting the speed bumps up in The Villas off of 441 North. We'd like to have three, maybe one on each road.

Please address sanitation trucks securing their loads on Claxton Dairy Road. Trash regularly falls off and litters the roadway. Better tarping and load checks would keep the road cleaner and safer.

Opening arguments in murder trial

DUBLIN COURIER-HERALD

By Doug Hall
Attorneys made their opening arguments this morning in the Cheryl S. Todd-Dessie X Woods trial before the jury of 11 women and one man.

It was the first time the case had come before a jury since Ronnie L. Horne, 35, was shot to death last June 16.

District Attorney Phil West gave the jury a preview of how the state expects to prove the two black women murdered and robbed Horne after he had picked them up hitchhiking.

Defense attorneys presented lengthy arguments before the jury claiming that Horne tried to take undue advantage of the women and was shot by Mrs. Woods in self-defense. Monday, before about fifty courtroom spectators and officials, tape recorded statements made by the two defendants were played.

The jury was not present. In the two rambling 20-minute admissions, Mrs. Todd and Mrs. Woods told about meeting Ronnie Horne, shooting him, and trying to make their way back to Atlanta.

Both women said repeatedly that they feared Horne was trying to kill them. They were also concerned that the man was going "to take us in the wood" and rape them.

Attorneys for the two women have repeatedly stated that Mrs. Todd and Mrs. Woods were defending themselves from sexual advances when Horne was shot twice in the head.

There has been little mention that the women were in fear of their lives.

Speaking rapidly and erratically, Mrs. Todd said Horne told them he was a "detective." He spoke with another "detective" through a "microphone," she said.

Earlier testimony showed the other "detective" was Raye Yawn, Horne's boss, who kept in touch with Horne over citizens band radios in their cars.

Mrs. Todd said that Horne took the two women down a "dark road." She said she jumped out of the car and ran down the road when Horne slowed down. Then she heard two shots and fell on the ground.

A moment later Mrs. Woods hollered out, "I killed him."

Both women said Horne talked "nasty" to them, but Mrs. Woods said he became friendly while Mrs. Todd said he began to talk "extremely nasty."

Mrs. Todd said Horne "put his hands" on Mrs. Wood, but Mrs. Wood said the victim did not touch her.

Mrs. Wood told her story of what happened in the car when Horne was shot. "He went for the gun. I took the gun. We both went for the gun, you see. I saw what he was going to do. I grabbed the gun...took it out of the holster and I shot him."

After the man was shot, she went in his pocket and took out the "hit money" she said Horne was paid by the Glenville police to kill the two women. When they were arrested the next day, police found $147 and a pistol believed to be Horne's.

Mrs. Todd and Mrs. Wood were jailed in Glenville on drunkenness charges several days before Horne's death. Both women claim Mrs. Todd was sick with "seizures" when arrested by police near Reidsville State Prison.

Mrs. Todd said the police "roughed" up the women. Mrs. Woods said a policeman scratched her across the breast during the arrest.

Judge James B. O'Connor was expected to rule today whether the taped statements could be admissible in court.

Yesterday he ruled that the state had "clearly shown" that the statements were voluntarily made.

Laurens County Sheriff Investigator Buddy Daniels, Wheeler County Sheriff Maurice Johnson and GBI Agent Joe White testified that they complied with requirements of the Miranda decision in giving the defendants their constitutional rights at the time of the arrests. Waivers of counsel and other rights, signed by the two women, were entered as evidence.

QUINN, ACTING CITY MANAGER

Jim Quinn, the city purchasing agent, has been designated Dublin's acting city manager on a "very,very temporary basis." At the same time Council set up an interview for Saturday with a prospective city manager candidate. The applicant's name was not revealed.

Moving to "nip in the bud" ideas that Council would take the same course as it did when former City Manager Ron McLemore was appointed, Council put several limitations on the acting manager position.

Mayor Robert E. Cochran noted that some people might consider Quinn a part of the "old clique," but he emphasized that the appointment was "essential" and "very, very temporary."

Quinn was hired by McLemore and began working under a Federal Emergency Employment grant in October.

He has over 20 years experience in city government and is said to be a possible applicant for the full time manager's job.

Alderman Buddy Adams asked that Quinn not move into the city manager's office since that might affect "morale." Council also stipulated that the acting manager not create any new jobs and that he inform Council of any city employees being dismissed.

LAURENS RETAIL SALES OVER $10 MILLION

Retail sales in Laurens County in November last year seem destined to set a new record for the county, having passed the $10 million mark for the seventh time, according to information from the Division of Research College of Business Administration of the University of Georgia.

Last year sales through November were more than $110,799,000, counting the more than $10,762,000 sales of November. The sales through November, 1975, are within $4,000 of the total years sales of 1975 when they totaled more than $114,437,000.

Even if Laurens County sales in December fall below the $10 million mark, the total for the year will exceed the total for 1975. The Laurens sales in November were the second highest for the year, topped only by the sales in September that passed $10,894,000.

MAJOR TROPHY WINNERS

At the Dublin Touchdown Club Jamboree, the major trophy winners were these:

Coaches' Trophy - Bill Pollard
Best Linebacker - Alan Crabb
Best Defensive Lineman - Stan Stanley
Best Offensive Lineman - Steve Edwards

A large crowd, about 300 people, attended the festivities at the Dublin High School Cafeteria and heard a talk by Erskine Russell, Assistant Head Coach and Defensive Co-ordinator of the University of Georgia Bulldogs.

Allen Thomas, President of the Touchdown Club, introduced the speaker, who praised the 1975 Irish squad for their 7-3 record and challenged the 1976 squad to "win the State championship while Georgia becomes the National college champion."

He also pointed out the good work of the cheerleaders and the role they play in achieving a good football program.

Three factors determine the success of an athletic program:

Having good talent with desire, determination and intelligence.

Great loyalty and support from the hometown boosters.

Luck that comes your way as a result of hard work and a better than 100 percent effort.

Miss Pearl Whitlock was introduced, and she introduced the cheerleaders.

Also recognized was Cecil Pollock, Dublin High School Band Director.

County champs...

Three in-town rivals competed for the final time this regular season Thursday night as they convened for The Laurens County Championships at the Old West Laurens gym. The host Raiders took first place overall, with 238 points, followed by Dublin, with 156.5, and Trinity, with 19 (East Laurens was unable to compete). Individual champs by weight (shown at right, not in order) were West's Jarek Giles (106), Luke Shepard (113), Sebastian Rodriguez (120), Jayden Starley (132), Damien Cummings (138), John Howell (144), Jonathon McDonald (157), Braylen Robinson (165), Zorian Willis (175), Jayden Watkins (190) and Maxx Chafin (215), and Dublin's Keymontae Sanders (126), Dorian Carcamo (150) and Domimarkeyo Walden (285). Dublin, Trinity and West will all serve as hosts of region and area traditional championships set for this week and/or weekend/SPECIAL PHOTO

MORE WRESTLING: MGMSAA CROWNS REGION CHAMPIONS

Before Thursday night's all-county meet, the mats at the O.W.L. belonged to area middle schoolers competing for top spots in the MGMSAA region championships. West Laurens, with 69 team points and 19 placers in the top three by weight, cruised to the overall title, with Swainsboro (34), Jeff Davis (32), Dodge County (19), East Laurens (13) and Dublin (1) in pursuit. Region champs were WLMS' Brody Faulk (70), Rhett Clanton (91), Bently Williams (98), Tyler Howell (106), Phillip Howell (120), Aden Lindsey (126), Carter Moore (144), Antoine Tuten (165) and Joshiah Spencer (285), and ELMS' Liam Oliver (84). Below are scenes from several of Thursday's matches...

SWOOPING IN: West Laurens' Dracen Ussery pounces after taking Dublin's Andre Wright Jr. off-balance. He'd need only a few more seconds to complete the pin for a victory in the 215-pound round-robin/CLAY REYNOLDS

WIN BY FAULK: WLMS coach Noah Garnto reacts as Brody Faulk pins East Laurens' Sedrick Miller to nail down first place in the two-member 70-pound weight division. After winning their earlier bout by 1-0 decision, Faulk held off a strong bid by Miller (who led by five going to the last minute of regulation of this one) to force another rematch that would've been a winner-take-all/CLAY REYNOLDS

TEAM PLAYERS: These East Laurens Middle School wrestlers (left) stayed glued to the action from matside each time they had a teammate competing. The support had to be valuable for JaKobe Morris as rallied for this pin (right) in the third period to complete a comeback win over Swainsboro's Vincent Green, and get the group fired up/CLAY REYNOLDS

FINAL COUNTDOWN: West Laurens' Carter Moore salts away the last few seconds of his win, by 12-5 decision, over Dodge County's Terrance Brown – the first of his two-match run to take first at 144 lbs./CLAY REYNOLDS

Cain leading charge for top-ranked Dawgs at Stegeman...

Christopher Blue Lonergeran Cain, Georgia's 6-5 guard, functions with cagey stealth, cunning defensive acumen, and touch from the three-point line, along with competitive embers which seem to burn more intensely as the game goes on. His name is a mouthful, and he is often a handful in Southeastern Conference competition. He is only satisfied when his teammates raise clenched fists that confirm victory.

"Blue is part of his legal name," says Mike Mobley, men's basketball sports information director, one of the most competent members of the UGA Athletic Association staff. "His parents named him for the colors of his dad's alma mater, Duke University Blue Devils."

Lonergeran is his mother's maiden name which reflects that the Cains are as family oriented as the Brady's and the Cleavers. A roll call reflects that they all have Division I pedigrees: Dad, Chris, played golf well enough at Duke to reach the advanced stages of the ACC and NCAA championships. His mom, Myriah, is a member of the George Washington basketball Hall of Fame, and sister, Sophie, was a setter in volleyball at Appalachian State.

They all thrive on competition, and it was a red-letter day when Blue beat his dad on the golf course for the first time. On a family vacation to Scotland last summer, father and son took their clubs and introduced themselves to the famous courses where the Open championship is played each year. And some of the lesser-known courses that offer beauty, charm and challenge. They have a deep and abiding reverence for the environs of "Old Tom Morris."

They always try to take in the Masters in the spring, treating the tournament like a seasoned fisherman who casts from sunrise to sunset. They simply can't get enough of the game.

Lately, however, Blue has been helping Georgia become substantial in SEC competition. His movement on the court is quick and deft. He gets in an opponent's face more often than Donald Trump. He plays much taller than his published height, and when he's on, he collects three pointers as adroitly as any 6-5 guard in the league.

By LORAN SMITH

When the competition under the basket is keenest, there are a lot of elbows and slings and arrows. Blue enjoys mixing it up and can hold his own. He can be the aggressor and he often makes salient and defining plays coming out of the endless scrums which take place on the court.

You might describe his enduring facial expression as being pensive, but he is never without passion and commitment. His anticipatory skills are consistently redeeming as he assesses opportunity and then moves with aplomb to the basket. Fade away, accurate arch, and the crowd is on its feet with a resounding crescendo.

A Catholic kid who grew up in Knoxville, Tenn., of all places, Blue was headed to Georgia Tech where Josh Pastner was the head coach, but Pastner was fired before Blue enrolled. Disappointment segued into rapture. The entire Bulldog staff worked overtime to make him feel at home in Athens. He came, he looked, he stayed. He now feels that it was somewhat providential. "I couldn't be happier than I am here," he says. "This is a great place and the coaches are all outstanding. I love being a Bulldog."

He is helping UGA elevate its basketball program under the introspective Mike White who underscores the teaching element of his line of work. Blue and his teammates are athletic. They can make plays, they fight for the ball, and they uplift the sold-out crowds which have become commonplace.

It is like the line from, "Field of Dreams." "Build it and they will come." Put a selfless fivesome on the court, a compatible group proud to wear the "G" with a competitive underscoring of team effort and you have something that brings a collection of Dawg mania proponents to Stegeman night after night.

"The Steg" is a cozy den of energy, moxie and verve. Occupants want to help their team gain the advantage, make it uncomfortable for visitors and help basketball resonate with the fan base, a long-suffering core that is now being fulfilled.

"I'm so glad that Mike White is leading the Dawgs back to prominence," said former coach Tubby Smith in town for the honoring of the Sweet Sixteen team of 1996. "He is a fine coach and his team is fun to watch." How 'bout that endorsement!

If White keeps recruiting players like Blue Cain, "The Steg" will continue to rock. The SEC, long known for its football prowess, can compete with the best at Dr. Naismith's game. You have missed something if you don't watch the basketball Dawgs raise a little "Cain" at "The Steg."

VA held graduation for EVAL class

SPECIAL TO THE COURIER HERALD

The Carl Vinson VA Medical Center has announced the Sept. 30 graduation of its 2025 Emerging VA Leaders leadership development class.

Dublin VA’s EVAL class prepares aspiring leaders for advanced positions of responsibility in the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs. VA sponsors leadership development classes like EVAL to ensure seamless transitions from one generation of VA managers to the next and to underscore the philosophy of responsible stewardship of governmental resources and its commitment to serve to veterans.

The 2025 EVAL class, which began training in January, included an interdisciplinary group of twelve VA employees, and involved a 9-month training regimen that covered subjects as diverse as management and leadership principles, systems improvement, financial oversight, emotional intelligence, and public speaking, with the guiding ideals being superior customer service and veteran-centered care. Participation in the EVAL program also includes matching class members with experienced VA managers as mentors who coach participants in career enhancement.

According to Employee Education Services supervisor Wayne Nesmith, the curriculum is designed to prepare program participants for the future and to empower them in their current duties.

“The goal of our EVAL class is to develop current and future VA leaders who will promote our ideals by incorporating them into their management practices. Planning for VA’s future has to be a continual process so that we can ensure that we are providing veterans the best possible health care and leadership training helps us to do that,” Nesmith said.

Addressing the philosophy behind the program, Nesmith challenged graduates to ask themselves a question.

“Is the world better off for what I am doing? Specifically, are my veterans’ lives better for what I’m doing?”

2025 EVAL graduates include Kelsey Bryant, Raynard Churchwell, Sequonah Coleman, Zackary Fordham, Decarla Jones, Joseph Lang III, Rocky Ryals, Liz Schradler, Shenellda Williams, Kennetris Wright, Kylie Wright, and Latha Yatabe.

Interim medical center director Lenearo Ashford, who attended the graduation and listened to project presentations from the participants as part of their training, was enthusiastic about the chance to ensure capable future leadership for the medical center and that the class emphasized customer service as its focus.

“Now go forth and use what you learned. Anywhere you go, these skills will be beneficial, and we certainly hope that you continue to use them for the benefit of our veterans,” Ashford said.

WEEKLY BRIDGE QUIZ ANSWERS

Q 1 - Neither vulnerable, as South, you hold:
♠ K J 7 6 ♥ A 10 9 3 ♦ A Q J 5 ♣ 7
Right-hand opponent opens 2H, weak. What call would you make?
A - Double is out with a singleton club. Pass, 2S, and 2NT all have flaws, but we like 2NT best.

Q 2 - North-South vulnerable, as South, you hold:
♠ J 7 5 ♥ 6 5 ♦ K 7 5 ♣ A K Q 5 3
WEST NORTH EAST SOUTH
1♠ 2♥ Pass ?
What call would you make?
A - You probably want to be in 3NT if partner has a spade stopper, but don't bid 2S. That shows a heart fit. Just describe your hand. Bid 3C.

Q 3 - East-West vulnerable, as South, you hold:
♠ A Q 10 6 5 ♥ 7 6 4 ♦ 8 6 4 ♣ K 8
EAST SOUTH WEST NORTH
1♠ 1♥ Pass 1♥ 1♠
What call would you make?
A - Many would have overcalled with this hand. We applaud your pass, but don't go wild now. This hand is worth an invitation, so bid 3H to show that.

Q 4 - Both vulnerable, as South, you hold:
♠ K 10 9 7 5 2 ♥ 7 6 ♦ Q ♣ A 7 6 4 2
SOUTH WEST NORTH EAST
1♠ 3♥ Pass 2NT* Pass
? Game-forcing spade raise
Shortness
What call would you make?
A - This hand has potential but leave further adventures to partner. Bid 4S.

Q 5 - North-South vulnerable, as South, you hold:
♠ Q 8 7 4 ♥ Q J 10 7 ♦ 8 ♣ A 10 9 4
NORTH EAST SOUTH WEST
1NT Pass 2♣ ?
What call would you make?
A - This hand is too good to invite. Bid 3NT.

Q 6 - East-West vulnerable, as South, you hold:
♠ A J 8 3 ♥ A K ♦ Q 8 7 2 ♣ Q 10 6
WEST NORTH EAST SOUTH
1♠ Pass 1♥ ?
What call would you make?
A - Bid 1NT. That shows the same thing even after both opponents have bid. Some use the bid as a weak take out, but what do you do with a good hand like this?

SUDOKU

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

phases. Once the elementary school is completed, and the staff and students are in the new building, the old ELE school will be demolished. This will make a way for the new ELMS athletic complex.

“Our facilities that we currently have for the middle school are very old,” Hall said. “I think that is obvious. This allows us to be more in compliance of handicap accessibility and things of that nature. The middle school has been having to share and that has created problems with practice times and causes some kids to get home later. Now, we have to try to schedule games accordingly. Trying to schedule all of that can get very tricky. We won’t have to worry about that in the future.”

Later in the meeting, Janelle Butler, who had been serving as the district’s federal program director, was named as the new associate superintendent of elementary curriculum and instruction. She will take this new position on July 1. James Lawhorn, who is currently serving in that position, will move over to associate superintendent for secondary education curriculum and instruction on July 1.

“It is good to be able to start this transition and put our team together,” Hall said. “We want to move forward and keep up the great work and build upon the good work that has already been done, especially in our curriculum and construction area.”

In other business, the board:

- Approved list A of the Laurens County Schools personnel recommendations for certified staff members and administration for the FY 2026-2027 school year. A list B was approved for certified staff members. Board member Kevin Malone abstained from voting on this list because of family connections.
- Approved the retirements of Laura Cook and Carol Milton (both teachers at Northwest Laurens Elementary).
- Approved the resignations of Austin Powell, paraprofessional at West Laurens Middle School and Laura Coleman and Paulette Sellers, both food nutrition assistant at WLMS.

Members of the Laurens County Board of Education held a called meeting Thursday to approve a contractor for construction on the Eastside. years, helping and serving in all capacities whether it is advocating for social justice or uplifting our local community,” Walker said.

“We also have enhanced our environment. We do something around building our economic wealth as well. We educate people about savings accounts and how to manage their money, especially in a time like this with the way the economy is the way it is. As a sorority, we are happy to be able to offer and bless the people in Dublin we these kinds of services.”

juries or complaints.

The first of what turned out to be four overall wrecks began around 5:30 a.m. Friday when a 2017 Toyota Corolla, driven by Lasonya Laquin Edmond, 39, of Rentz was heading east on I-16 in the right lane near mile marker 37.

A 2016 Freightliner Cascadia, driven by Mohamed Ahmed Ali, 31, of Eagan, Minnesota had broken down and parked on the right shoulder of the road out of the travel lanes. The Toyota failed to maintain lane, crossed the right fog line and collided with the trailer of the Freightliner. The Toyota eventually came to an uncontrolled final rest in the median.

Edmond was transported to FPH with suspected minor or visible injuries.

Ali told GSP that his vehicle experienced fuel/engine failure around 11:30 p.m. on Thursday, Jan. 22, which was why it was parked on the shoulder of the road with its emergency flashers on. He also deployed reflective triangles in the road behind his vehicle.

The second wreck occurred hours later at the same crash site.

Around 7:49 a.m., a 2016 Mack, driven by James Gerald Futch, 76, of Pembroke, approached the Ali’s vehicle and also failed to maintain lane, hitting the broken down Freightliner. After the Mack continued to hit the left side of the vehicle, it struck several small trees before hitting a fence. Futch was not taken for treatment.

Around 8:05 a.m., three more vehicles were involved in a wreck after traffic began backing up due to the first two crashes.

Joseph Ryan Chajkowski, 45, of Stone Mountain, was traveling east in a 2023 Ford F-150. Donnavon Shane Edmond, 49, of Forsyth, was driving a 2019 Ford Transit and Justin Deon Hill, 45, of Montrose, was traveling in a 2018 Kenworth. Both Edmond and Hill were slowing to a stop because of the previous wrecks.

Chajkowski said he looked down for just a second to grab his coffee when his vehicle began to auto-brake. He looked up in time to see his vehicle striking the back of the Ford Transit.

Hill told a trooper that he began to slow down in the left lane due to a crash ahead of him. He was almost completely stopped when he heard a crash behind him and then felt the impact from the Ford Transit.

Chajkowski and Hill were not injured while Edmond was transported to FPH and listed with a suspected minor or visible injuries.
